

Cherie Porter Blackwell is a fine arts photographer and printmaker in the San Francisco Bay Area. Her art practice involves the application of digital capture photography to fine arts printmaking including utilizing photogravure, gum bichromate, and large-scale serigraphic pigment printing techniques on wood and textiles to produce images that sit on the borderline between photography and hand-drawn imagery.

Works in progress include a collector's boxed set of photographic images printed with photogravure and photopolymer gravure processes to be available in 2017.

For more information about current exhibitions, workshops, and private tutoring, please contact the artist directly.